BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

Pictorialist portrait photographer, Mary Lyon Taylor (1872–1956), worked in Indianapolis from 1906 to about 1910. Born Mary Gertrude Lyon in Ripon, Wisconsin on 17 March 1872, she settled with her family in Minneapolis in the 1880s. She received artistic training at home and abroad, specializing in miniature portraits on porcelain and ivory. During her late teens she attended a finishing school in the East.

On 6 July 1898 she married Edward A. Taylor (20 January 1865–14 February 1934), whom she met while visiting her sister in Indianapolis. Edward and Mary lived in Indianapolis at 1941 N. Pennsylvania Street, today part of the Herron-Morton Place neighborhood. They had two sons, Edward Lord and Heber Newton Lyon Taylor.

The Taylor family experienced financial difficulty in 1906, so Mary Lyon Taylor decided to ease the burden by operating a home portraiture business. She began by photographing her family and friends in the drawing room of her home and eventually photographed the sitters in their own homes, charging $100–200 per order.

Among her sitters were: poet, James Whitcomb Riley (1853–1916); Lilly Ridgely Lilly (1862–1934); publisher William Conrad Bobbs (1861–1926), his wife, local artist Ruth Pratt Bobbs (1884–1973); Meredith Nicholson, Jr. (1902–1968) and Elizabeth K. Nicholson (1899–1951) and their children; Bertha Greene Lockwood (1863–1914), secretary of the Indiana Child Labor Committee and a founder of the Woman's Department Club and other Lockwood family members; banker Evans Woollen, Jr. (1897–1959); Taylor's family: her husband Edward A. Taylor (1865–1934), sons Edward Lord Taylor (1899–1950) and Heber Newton Lyon Taylor (1901–1995), and her father Rev. Daniel Brayton Lyon (1820–1912); Mrs. Hugh McKennan Landon and her daughters, Mrs. Horace Nixon and daughters, Mrs. Alexander Patton and daughter, Beth Wilson, and members of the Marmon family.

Taylor worked in the "pictorialist" style, an artistic photographic genre characterized by its soft-focus appearance. She often posed her subjects with an open book or flower in front of a tapestry backdrop and near a window for side lighting. Taylor developed and printed her own negatives and photographs, touching up the negatives with graphite to lessen the appearance of wrinkles. Taylor's career came to a halt in 1907 or 1908 when she separated from her husband and moved with her two sons to Minneapolis. After about a year she reunited with her husband and returned to Indianapolis. Negatives of the Pillsbury family of Minneapolis suggest that she may have photographed during their separation.

Taylor copyrighted several of her images in 1909 and 1910. In 1911 she won first prize in the Kodak Advertising Competition. She also exhibited photographs at the Thirteenth Annual Exhibition of the Richmond (Indiana) Art Association (1909) and the fifth and sixth American Photographic Salons (1908 and 1909), national traveling photographic exhibitions that included showings at the John Herron Art Institute.

Throughout her life, Taylor also expressed her artistic side through other mediums. She served as president of the Indianapolis Women's Needlework Guild, wrote poetry, and published more than twenty pieces of sheet music. After an unsuccessful attempt at operating a dairy farm north of Indianapolis, Taylor and her family moved to California, first living in La Jolla, and later in Beverly Hills. In the 1950s, Mary Lyon Taylor returned to Indianapolis where she died on 5 January 1956.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The collection comprises 30 boxes of 6 ½" x 8 ½" glass dry-plate negatives and one box of 126 modern contact prints. Mary Lyon Taylor made the negatives between 1906 and about 1910. In 1992 the Indiana Historical Society contact printed 121 negatives onto modern RC paper as reference prints for the education division's Mary Lyon Taylor project. The other five contact prints were made in 1985.

Most of the images are individual and group portraits. The subjects were mostly members of Indianapolis's upper-middle class posed in their finest clothing. Taylor specialized in mother and child portraiture; there are, however, several portraits of adult men. Many of her clients were fellow members of the Christ Church Cathedral, neighbors, or her mother-in-law's club friends. Some of the portraits show home interiors. Also represented in the collection are several landscapes and gardens, and images of servants at work.

When David Stahl discovered the negatives in Mary Lyon Taylor's old home (1941 N. Pennsylvania Street) in the early 1980s, they were still in their original paper envelopes labeled with the family names and housed in the original Kodak negative boxes and stacked in wooden crates. The I.H.S. processed the negatives in 1985 and grouped them roughly by family name. For an unknown reason, the processors wrote the family names within brackets on the new archival boxes. Furthermore, they sometimes incorrectly transcribed Taylor's sometimes illegible handwriting, including her own name (P178 was incorrectly named the Mary Lyn Taylor Collection from 1985 until corrected in 1992).

Please note that the name on the archival envelope does not always correlate to known sitters. The name on the envelope may indicate either the person who ordered the sitting or that someone at one time re-filed a negative into the wrong envelope.

The descriptions in square brackets were provided by the processors.
